Where Affordable Excellence Meets Real-World Experience

A Supportive Learning Community

Brandeis Law is a supportive learning community of talented individuals whose collegial demeanor complements their commitment to professional excellence. Maintaining open-door policies and open lines of communication, our dedicated faculty go the extra mile to be accessible and approachable, while alumni throughout the region and nation serve as mentors and networking resources.

Connected to a Thriving Legal Market

Brandeis Law works hard to prepare students for success in their legal careers through our ties to the vibrant Louisville legal market and our emphasis on experiential learning and applied training for our students. Our location provides opportunities for meaningful, affordable legal training alongside engaged alumni and respected practitioners.

Rooted in Values, Powered by Community

At Brandeis Law, we live out UofL's Cardinal Principles—accountability, respect, inclusivity, and leadership—in everything we do. Our students arrive with a wide range of backgrounds and life experiences, and there's no single mold they're expected to fit. What unites them is a readiness to learn and a drive to contribute—to the law school, the university, and the broader Louisville community. Collaboration is at the heart of our culture, whether through daily interactions with peers and faculty or through active participation in student organizations and leadership opportunities. Brandeis Law students lift each other up, and they carry that spirit of connection and purpose into their careers.

Affordable, Accessible, Experiential

Practical training is at the core of the Brandeis Law experience. Our robust approach to experiential education takes students beyond the classroom and into real-world legal settings—without sacrificing affordability or access.

Learning Through Service

Through our legal clinics, including the newly launched Immigration Law Clinic, students provide accessible, specialized legal services to the community under the guidance of expert clinical faculty. Our externship program offers abundant opportunities to earn academic credit while gaining hands-on experience across diverse legal workplaces.

Public Interest with Purpose

Funded fellowships support those pursuing careers in public interest law, and our flagship Samuel L. Greenebaum Public Service Program reinforces Brandeis Law's commitment to developing thoughtful, socially responsible lawyers—and to honoring our namesake, Justice Louis D. Brandeis, known as “the People's Lawyer.”

Law Schools in the Bluegrass

Chase College of Law is Entering New Courtroom Era

Preliminary artist's renderings show a proposed exterior and interior of the Chase College Foundation Courtroom being constructed on the first floor of the Chase College of Law Nunn Hall.

Beginning later this year, Salmon P. Chase College of Law students will be able to be in court without leaving the college's home in Nunn Hall on the Northern Kentucky University campus.

That is when a new courtroom, backed by major funding from the independent Chase College Foundation and donations from alumni and other donors, is scheduled to be opened for use in mock trials and traveling sessions of commonwealth and federal courts.

Primary funding for the courtroom nearing completion on the first floor of Nunn Hall is being provided by the Chase College Foundation, which was established in 1954 when Chase was an independent law school in Cincinnati and which continues to support the college through the 70-year-old legacy fund it manages. Funding for specific courtroom features, such as the judicial bench, counsel tables and jury room, is being provided by alumni and friends of the college through a designated giving campaign.

When the courtroom is completed, it will be known as the Chase College Foundation Courtroom, with individuals' designated donations acknowledged on a donor recognition panel.

"Chase students will benefit from a new, state-of-the-art courtroom because the students will now have had the opportunity to take a trial advocacy class or participate in a mock trial program where the type of technology available in many 21st century courtrooms will be available to them," says Professor Jack Harrison, the longtime coordinator of student mock trial teams. "Also, with a modern, sophisticated courtroom available, the law school will be able to host actual trials where judges are willing to do a trial setting in the new courtroom."

In addition to use by students, the courtroom will be available for sessions of the Supreme Court of Kentucky, the Kentucky Court of Appeals (which convened at Chase a year ago), commonwealth and federal trial and appellate courts, and community groups.

The new courtroom will replace one that had become outdated by advances in technology and its limited assembly spaces. Within it will be all the technology, ancillary spaces and furnishings of a modern courtroom. Most of those appointments are being funded by contributions from alumni and friends of the college. In addition to the Chase College Foundation, donations are funding aspects such as the judicial bench, counsel tables, jury box, and jury and gallery chairs.

Questions about remaining opportunities to contribute to the courtroom project can be directed to David MacKnight, associate dean for advancement, at macknightd1@nku.edu.
